Alexis

Creative Coding 1

9/2/24

GUI and CLI

A GUI, pronounced (gooey) is what the user interacts with. It is the buttons that you press, and are the visuals that you are seeing and able to interact with. On the other hand we have CLI, which is used as a command center, where you use prompts. CLI is what we use to build websites, and a user can type commands into the computer's operating system.